

What You Need to Know About Overdrafts and Overdraft Fees

An overdraft/insufficient funds item occurs when you do not have enough money in your account to cover a transaction, but we pay it anyway. We can cover your overdrafts/insufficient funds items in two different ways:

1. We have standard overdraft practices that come with your account.
2. We also offer overdraft protection plans, such as a link to a savings account, which may be less expensive than our standard overdraft practices. To learn more, ask us about these plans.

This notice explains our standard overdraft practices.

What are the standard overdraft practices that come with my account?

We do authorize and pay overdrafts/insufficient funds items for the following types of transactions:

- Checks and other transactions made using your checking account number
- Automatic bill payments

We do not authorize and pay overdrafts for the following types of transactions unless you ask us to (see below):

- ATM transactions
- Everyday debit card transactions

We pay overdrafts/insufficient funds items at our discretion, which means we do not guarantee that we will always authorize and pay any type of transaction.

If we do not authorize and pay an overdraft/insufficient funds item, your transaction will be declined. If an everyday debit card transaction is forced through by a merchant or the merchant receives an approval code at the time of transaction, we may not be able to decline your transaction. This may cause your account balance to become negative, and other transactions may be declined.

Under our standard overdraft practices:
